Executive Functioning Skill: Task Initiation

This April, our school-wide focus is on the executive functioning skill of Task Initiation, which supports students to help themselves get started on their work independently and with confidence.

We will be introducing a simple and effective strategy called: Get Ready – Do – Done. This approach supports students in breaking tasks into three manageable steps:

- Get Ready: Gather materials and understand what needs to be done
- Do: Start and work through the task
- Done: Check work and recognize completion

By practicing this strategy at school, students will build stronger habits around starting tasks, staying engaged, and finishing their work.

You can support this learning at home by encouraging your child to use “Get Ready – Do – Done” for homework, chores, or daily routines.
